

and her reading, she said that the day she had met Mr. Brockley at the day school, she had been reading "The Gates Ajar," by Elizabeth Stuart Phelps.

"Were you old enough to take care of yourself at the Wesleyan Seminary?" asked Mr. Butterworth.

"Yes, sir," was the answer, but after it had been made Mr. Wilson proceeded to object that it was not age or reading upon which stress was made, but that it depended upon "who approached with the silver tongue and the golden pen," the well-known soubriquet of the defendant, who had been reading "The Gates Ajar" to him, which caused Judge Bradley to rap on his desk with a sharp report.

"I want the public to understand that this is not a case of age or reading here, and if there is any demonstration of approval or snickering, I will order the room to be cleared."

The admonition had its effect.

There was much questioning as to whether the plaintiff knew certain persons in Bridgeport, Conn., where she had stopped in 1882 and 1883. Some of the names she did not remember; others she recalled, among them being Mr. Julian, the blind man, with whom the defense will endeavor to prove Miss Pollard retired to a country house after a mock marriage.

A Mock Marriage Denied.

Then Miss Pollard proceeded to explain the circumstances of the visit to the country house, on which the defense was based, declaring that the story of her knowledge of nothing like a mock marriage had taken place. Her uncle, George, who is still living, and with whom she has lived since, had with her mother, who died, lived with her mother.

"Did Mr. Julian ever conduct himself towards you as a lover?" she was asked.

"No, indeed," he would not, she replied, and the explanation that her uncle George had been very strict with her, and would not have permitted anything of the sort.

"How long did your friendship with Mr. Julian last?" she was asked.

"I thought Mr. Julian was still my friend. I did not know that he was not."

"Did you know Owen Robinson?" she was asked.

"I knew Mr. Robinson," she replied, and did you ever correspond with him?"

"I may have written to him. I do not remember."

Several letters were handed to Miss Pollard, with an inquiry whether she had written them.

She said she could best tell by reading them to see whether she recognized any expressions as those she was accustomed to use. After a long pause she handed back the first one, saying with a smile, "I think I might have written them. One of them contained a lock of hair."

A Schoolgirl's Letters.

The first one, dated in March, 1883, was begun, "Dear Owen," and she put his last letter under her pillow and cried herself to sleep, expressed regret for a letter written on Valentine's day, and said she was the most honorable boy she had ever known, and that he must consider her the most honorable girl of all. "I am sure," she said, "that he is the most honorable boy she had ever known, and that he must consider her the most honorable girl of all."

It also inquired, "Who is that George Reddick, that makes you so much to the skies?" It expressed sorrow that she had not been his picture, as she would rather have it than anything else. It invited him to come up and stay over Sunday, and said she understood that when Owen came to see "the knot with their tongues," they would not quarrel, but be "lovely" with the poetical quotation: "It is best for me to know, love, best for you."

Regarding the middle name, she said that she did not like her own name "Valeria," so she had often signed "Valian." Owen Robinson and another young man allied to as "Henry," had been students in the Kentucky Military Institute, and had often visited her house.

What Owen Robinson a tutor of "Mr. Butterworth" asked.

"What do you mean by a tutor?" Miss Pollard inquired in return, explaining: "I am a tutor in the school. There was no love affair between us, no talk of marriage or anything of that sort. We were very good friends, and he was the son of a poor woman, but very ambitious, and his tuition was paid by a rich friend."

ANSWERING THE COMPLAINT.

Police Captain McCullagh calls on Inspector McAvoy.

Police Capt. McCullagh, of the Prince street station, had an interview this morning with Inspector McAvoy about the complaints made against him by some of the women pickets of the strikers at Lattinmann's shoe factory, 32 South Fifth avenue.

They said he was rude to them and called them "a lot of suckers." What was the result of his talk with the Inspector was not given out.

OUR MINISTER'S WIFE.

Some Things Which She Knows and Tells.

The position occupied by the minister's wife enables her to hear many things of great interest, and people are always interested to what she says.

Mrs. Rev. W. B. Worthing, of West Berlin, Vt., is a most charming and estimable lady. She says:

"Last March I had the grippe, which left my stomach in such a condition that it would not digest anything."

"I could not eat even baby food without the greatest distress. My nerves were in a fearful weak condition and I could sleep but little. I was also full of rheumatism from head to foot and aches awfully night and day."

"I was in a terrible state and feared I should never get well. I tried physicians and medicines, but got no better. Having heard the most astounding reports of the good done by Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, I determined to try that this time, instead of physicians."

"After taking three bottles my digestion was even better than before I had the grippe, and my nerves were entirely restored to their normal condition. My rheumatism left me and I had no more pain at all."

"I was entirely cured of all my troubles, and all through the aid of Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy. It is a wonderful medicine, and I advise every one who is sick or suffering from any cause to take it. It cured me and I am confident it will cure others."

It is the most certain cure known for weakness, nervousness, indigestion, constipation and all blood and nerve diseases. It is the best thing for kidneys and liver complaints. Take it now, in the spring, when you can be cured quickest. Your blood demands a spring medicine, and Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy is the best, because it always cures."

It is the discovery of our most successful specialist in curing nervous and chronic diseases. Dr. Greene, of 35 West 14th Street, New York City, has received many testimonials, either personally or by letter.

Local Buyers Bring About an Increase of Stock Values.

Sugar Takes a Bound on Advances from Washington.

The week opened a little Stock Exchange with a fair degree of activity and an improving tendency as to values.

Some little disappointment was experienced at the fact that London did not respond, but this was not allowed to interfere with the plans of the local bull operators who placed buying orders in various parts of the list and engaged in the market.

Even a sudden drop of 1 3/8 to 62 7/8 in Chicago Gas failed to make more than a passing influence on the market. The features under the leadership of Sugar, which rose 1 1/2 to 22 1/2, on the other hand, were very prominent.

Before the expiration of the first hour the railways were taken in hand and the late trading bears made a drive at the Grangers, and Rock Island was particularly strong.

TOOK CARE OF CASH ALSO.

Walter Campbell Arrested, Charged with Stealing Receipts.

George B. Campbell, a negro, of 18 West Twenty-sixth street, was remanded in the Jefferson Market Court today on a charge of larceny.

He formerly attended McAvoy's lunch counter at Twenty-first street and Seventh avenue. About a week ago he walked out of the place at 1 o'clock at night, and at the same time the receipts of the lunch counter, amounting to about $25, went with him.

Detective O'Keefe arrested him yesterday, and after a short detention at the police station, he was committed to the Tombs.

BUILDING SPRING HATS.

Over Three-Score of French Artists at Work at Stern Bros.

Seventy-six French artists are at work at Stern Bros., 46 West Twenty-third street, building ladies' hats for Spring wear. "Building" seems to be the proper word, for such a display of architectural skill as is here seen in the matter of hats has probably never been witnessed before. As samples may be mentioned a carriage hat of unfinished leghorn in the Gainsborough effect, trimmed on the left side with ostrich tips in green, yellow and blue, which are caught with clusters of crushed roses in the fashion of the artist's sketch.

The right side is trimmed with an Alsatian bow of white moire ribbon. The entire is finished with a face of chiffon spangled with gold sequins, and it is finished underneath with clusters of roses.

In the cloak and suit departments there is also the highest artistic merit displayed. For instance, there is a Pink cap, copied from the original, in more antique, trimmed with a deep band of velvet, with a very full back, extremely large revers, and with velvet trimmed with spangled lace.

Another is a very full back, extremely large revers, and with velvet trimmed with spangled lace. It is a masterpiece of the artist's hand, and is a masterpiece of the artist's hand.

SAMMY MILLS AGAIN.

This Time the Murderer Runs Aunck in the Bowery.

Sammy Mills, the young Cherry Hill tough, who in July last shot John, alias "Kid," O'Brien during a bloody fight one morning in Chatham square, but was afterwards acquitted of murder, was early this morning arrested on the Bowery at Bayard street by Central Office Detectives Murphy and McEahan.

This time he is charged with "running amuck" in the Bowery. He attempted to shoot an Italian, came near injuring half a dozen other persons, and wrecked the office of a lodging-house.

The affair happened at 5 o'clock on Saturday morning. Mills had an altercation with an Italian, who is janitor of a lodging-house at 11 Bowery. The two were standing in the street when their high words ended abruptly in Mills' revolver, with the loudly expressed determination of putting holes through the windows.

The latter rushed into the lodging-house, closely followed by Mills. In the office, the janitor hid behind a desk, and Mills emptied his seven-shooter. He fired at random, over the heads of half a dozen men who were there. Then he amused himself by tearing pictures from the wall, and throwing chairs through the windows.

Nobody interfered with him in his work of destruction, so when he had aimed at the head of the janitor, he calmly walked out of the house.

At 1 o'clock this morning, Detectives Murphy and McEahan saw Mills standing in the Bowery near Bayard
